Music Vocal Performance BM

109-113 Quarter Credits

Why study Music?

We believe the study of music is a vital component of a Liberal Arts education and illuminates the creative capacity of the human mind and spirit. Music is a central piece of every culture throughout history, and contributes to the health, well-being and balance of humanity. Through music, students develop a multi-layered ability to problem-solve, and to understand human society across all cultures. Music Majors work closely with music faculty, who combine dedicated teaching with artistic and scholarly excellence. Concerts and recitals, both on and off campus are presented by students and faculty throughout each year.

Vocal Performance

This exciting degree program includes studies in performance, pedagogy, diction, repertoire, opera and choral activities. Students have numerous opportunities for performing both on and off campus in a wide variety of venues, and in collaboration with artist faculty. Guest artist master classes are also included throughout each season. This course of study presupposes that the student will have a strong pre-college background in musical performance. A performance audition is required for entrance into the program.

Performance and Rehearsal Facilities

Music students enjoy facilities featuring a state of the art piano laboratory with 16 units, 32 practice rooms, electronic music laboratory, technically-enhanced classrooms, and an extensive collection of recordings, scores, and music reference materials.
