

College of Arts, Letters, and Education

Musical Theater BA 66-71 Quarter Credits

Why study Musical Theatre?

Theatre, Music and Dance teach people how to express themselves effectively. In addition to teaching self-expression, the performing arts help society as a whole cultivate self-knowledge, understanding and compassion. Above all else, the performing arts offer a vital outlet for human creativity. The Musical Theatre degree nurtures creativity and cultivates excellence in musical theatre performance. Musical Theatre majors receive hands-on instruction and experience through a collaborative partnership and shared degree program between the Music Department and The Department of Theatre and Film. Students receive in-depth instruction in Musical Theatre techniques including a multitude of public performance opportunities.

The Theatre Program

The University Theatre is located in the Fine Arts Complex. Our facilities include: a modern 229-seat proscenium theatre, a performance and dance studio, scene shop, and costume shop. Each academic year we produce three main-stage shows ranging from classical to contemporary plays and musicals plus Senior Capstone productions. We consistently collaborate with professional artists as guest Actors, Directors, Choreographers and Designers in the public performance program.
